PRINCIPLES OF DEVELOPMENT

1) Knowledge

An in-depth understanding of the groups or individuals you are working with.

2) Communication

Constantly seeking and acting upon feedback from stakeholders, in order to evaluate and improve your interaction with them.

3) Role

A commitment to playing a supportive role as opposed to a managerial role in the developmental process.

4) Diversity

Ensuring that diverse stakeholders are involved in decision-making (especially those most rarely heard from).

5) Independence

Support projects that build independence instead of projects that make stakeholders dependent on your organization.

6) Empowerment

Focus a significant amount of time and resources on educating and building the capacity of stakeholders so they gain the knowledge and skills needed to effectively maintain projects on their own.

7) Ownership

Ensure stakeholders are the ones deciding their own priorities and choosing the projects to be implemented.

8) Local Resources

Focus a significant amount of time and resources on educating and building the capacity of stakeholders so they gain the knowledge and skills needed to effectively maintain projects on their own.

9) The Root Issue

Support projects that address root issues and long-term needs instead of short-term fixes.

10) Collaborate

Don't be overly competitive- work towards common goals and seek partnerships with like-minded groups whenever possible.
